

ADDC Public Relations Statement

ADDC is an international, educational, organization of professionals employed in, or interested in learning about the Oil, Gas, Energy and Affiliated industries. As part of our motto – Greater Knowledge—Greater Service—we strive to teach ourselves and our communities about energy, through local monthly meetings, annual regional meetings and an educational conference and convention. For over 68 years, our members have been employed in all aspects of the energy industry, from petroleum engineers, landmen, accountants, administrative assistants, lawyers and field service workers. Membership is now open to those in the community who would like to be Energy Advocates, promoting the facts about energy in a balanced message that includes the benefits provided by the energy industry.
